Living Art in a New Landscape

Living Art in a New Landscape

Mindanao Art is an annual event showcasing the works of artists from all over Mindanao. It is the largest art event in Mindanao, and one of the largest in Southeast Asia.

Distinct, dynamic, diverse – Mindanao's art is the product of its varied sensibilities and perspectives, the creative produce of a culturally rich island at once frontier and center, where tradition sustains innovation, where innovation breeds new traditions.

Making Mindanao art accessible to Mindanao and to the world is the driving force behind The Mindanao Art Fair.

Mindanao Art is spearheaded by Lawig Diwa Foundation Inc., in partnership with the National Commission for Culture and the Arts National Committee on Art Galleries (NCCA-NCAG) and Malayan Colleges of Mindanao in Davao City.

It will showcase paintings, sculptures and other creative works by artists from different parts of Mindanao. World-renowned artists will exhibit alongside promising new names in the largest art fair in the island.

Now on its second year, Mindanao Art 2020 sees Mindanao's creative community chart exciting new ways forward as visual artists from all over the island celebrate the fair despite the pandemic. This year's Mindanao Art will be held with the theme 'Living Art in a New Landscape,' taking on the challenges presented by the global COVID-19 Pandemic as opportunities to innovate and take the visual arts forward.

The fair's main feature will be galleries of works by groups of artists from the different cities, provinces and regions of Mindanao, each group having their own gallery. All works will be viewable in state-of-the-art virtual reality museums accessible online for free. Works viewable on the virtual galleries will be available for sale.

Aside from the regional galleries, Special Projects by featured artists will also be exhibited. These special projects were conceptualized both to set a tone of reaching out to the community, and to respond to the pandemic and other issues that Mindanao is facing today.

Through these Special Projects, Mindanao Art helps artists play their organic role in society – to dignify locales by elevating them in the imagination, to showcase the universal humanity in the local particular, and to help heal and empower communities.

Mindanao Art is held along with another major art event, MArt Talks. A conference which sees artists, curators, art critics, educators, and cultural bearers from all over Mindanao join multiple panel sessions, MArt Talks is a platform for the island's arts community to talk about their work and discuss issues in Mindanao art today. Like Mindanao Art, this year's MArt Talks will go online! Panel discussions and lectures will be held as online conferences, to be broadcasted live and accessible to everyone.

Accessible, Intelligent, Engaging – Mindanao Art strives to sustain an arts scene that has real and lasting impact on people's lives.

Mindanao Art runs for two weeks starting 21 October, with MArt Talks Online taking place on 22 October. There will also be a limited physical exhibit at the Malayan Colleges of Mindanao campus in Davao City on an by-appointment basis to follow COVID-19 preventive protocol.

Visit www.min-art.org to explore Mindanao Art 2020's exciting features, and like and follow the Mindanao Art Facebook page to check out videos featuring some of Mindanao's best artists.

REFUGE Doodled Narratives

Refuge is the Datu Bago Gallery Café of Davao City National High School entry for Mindanao Art 2020. It is curated by Jay Reeve Guerrero, an Art Educator of Davao City National High School Special Program in the Arts.

Refuge is a collage from the collection of doodles done by the Arts and Design and Special Program in the Arts – Visual Arts Students of Davao City National High School while on quarantine. These doodles visually narrate their worries, anxieties, fears, frustrations, ideas, dreams, and hopes as their innocent minds try to understand these difficult times. Unable to go out and perform the things they usually do as teenagers, these students find refuge in their art. They made use of their old notebooks and pens (being incapable to secure materials due to lockdown) to visually narrate their stories, thereby lessening tension and, one doodle at a time, healing their souls.

This show is intended for the arts students to process their thoughts, and give them an avenue for alternative expressions while they are on quarantine and forbidden to attend face to face art classes. This contributes to their fast healing, and at the same time gives inspiration to the viewing public.

SERVED Life is a Pen

This is connected to the show entitled "Refuge" of the Davao City National High School, Datu Bago Gallery Café participated by the Arts and Design and Special Program in the Arts Visual Arts Students of the same school. This is a sculpture installation of a pen made-up of the pens utilized by the students while doing their doodles, donated used pens of Davao City NHS community, and some newly purchased pens intended for this installation.

As the class shifted from traditional to online, the use of pen became immaterial. This is to honor the main tool that transforms education for generations. This sculpture will serve as a memorial, giving decency to the ever-loyal friend we have in expressing our thoughts, feelings, ideas, or in the case of the students, a companion for learning, or for Arts Students helped them creates Artistic works.

Intentionally there are 3 kinds of pens included in the installation. First, are the totally used-up pens, second, the half-used pens then third, the unused pens. Those pens regardless of its kind are now decommissioned. Some of which served its purpose as a pen to the fullest, some served but not too well and some never served its purpose of creation at all. For the past few months during this pandemic, we realize how fragile life is. How short it was for some. Hopefully, this installation will make the audience to reevaluate their lives and the purpose of their existence.

DEANNA SIPACO FOUNDATION FOR THE DIFFERENTLY-ABLED, INC.

INCLUSION

We are artists, not charity cases. We are not like many people. We look, act and think differently. Oftentimes, we are called disabled and regarded as limited. Because the current environment we are in is not fully accessible to us, we are then labeled impaired. Hence, we are considered people who have 'special' needs.

But in reality, we long for the day when we will no longer be called 'special.'

That day when those on wheelchairs do not need to be assisted because roads and buildings are designed and built to accommodate them in a natural manner.

When those who are blind and deaf can pursue their dream jobs because the educational system provides enough resources and facilities to make them see and hear in the way they can.

When those born with Down Syndrome or Autism or another intellectual disability have access to appropriate training that allows them to pursue their desired careers, earn their own living, and live their own lives independently.

We hope that our "impairments" will no longer be seen as a tragedy, but rather as a tool for empowerment.

We have been trying to make our voices heard, so that people see the human in us first, before the "disabilities." These disabilities as another way of interacting with the world, a different way of doing things.

We have been trying to show that "disability" is okay.

This is the New Landscape that we want: one in we have inclusion, not exception.

Many of us members of the Deanna Sipaco (DS) Foundation for the Differently-Abled, Inc., have produced hundreds of artworks since the Foundation was founded in 2001. What was then a form of therapy for us has now become a passion. We started with simple sketches on bond paper and now, we have progressed to painting on big canvasses.

Our handiworks reflected our thoughts, hopes and desires. The lines, shapes and colors that we intuitively combined in our paintings express our inner landscape: happiness, sadness, excitement, whatever was our emotional and mental state. Our canvasses show the effort we make to overcome the challenges that come our way so we can live our lives to the full.

Simply put, ours has always been a living art.

In the early days, our exhibit area were the four walls of the foundation's office. But as the years went by, the venues became larger and more public. Thanks to the keen eyes of some local artists who discovered the value of our creations, we have been invited to showcase our artworks to a bigger audience in various malls and art exhibit venues in Davao City.

It was empowering to be finally seen as artists and not just charity cases.

Our proudest moment so far came with our participation in the 2019 Asia Pacific Accessible Art Festival in Macau, where creations of persons with disabilities were appreciated as artistic expressions of their hearts and souls. We were invited to perform and exhibit our artwork to an international audience.

For Mindanao Art 2020, we want you to see through our canvasses what transpired in our lives (and hearts and minds) during the Enhanced Community Quarantine (ECQ), when everyone in the world was forced to stay home and hide from an invisible enemy.

Like everyone else, we felt fear, anxiety, boredom, a sense of isolation. And just like everyone too, it was a chance to spend more time with our families and try out new things.

Despite the current gloomy landscape of this pandemic, where the invisible enemy continues to manifest its presence, we continue to hope for the sun to rise and shine soon.

REROOT

A Creative Reflection

Reroot is a painting exhibit of Davao-based artists organized by Gallery Down South for the upcoming Mindanao Art 2020.

It is curated by Jeff Bangot, an art practitioner and educator. This exhibit showcases artworks created by around 50 artists, mostly art students and new graduates of the different creative institutions in the city.

Reroot means to root again. It is a process that a plant undergoes once uprooted or replanted, a plant's way of reviving itself to survive.

This is a metaphor, describing our condition amid this pandemic, challenging times for all humanity. This could mean struggle or burden, but it could also be a way to recreate ourselves for good – a new beginning or chapter.

This exhibit highlights how the artists are coping with our changing times, and adapting to this so-called "New Normal".

It gives emphasis on their struggles, dreams, ideas, reflections, and hopes as they continue to live their lives as creatives in this uncertain moment, and in the process contribute to the fast healing of their souls, giving inspiration to the viewing public along the way.

KINARAAN and STAY AT HOME

The Little Big Things of the Now

Installation Art by Sining Mata

Student-artists from Sining Mata Visual Arts and Music School of Tagum City present two special projects for Mindanao Art 2020, both timely responses to the Pandemic.

"Kinaraan" is a series of dozens of terracotta pots, each designed with faces. Designed by different student artists, the faces of each pot is unique, with its own quirks and facial expressions.

The installation piece is meant as a return to the primitive potentials of pottery, a looking back triggered by the pandemic and the time it gives for introspection. The retrospection is an attempt to go back and work from a time where people did not rush art, where people took the time to work. Now that artists have all the time they need, they take their time to reflect on the past.

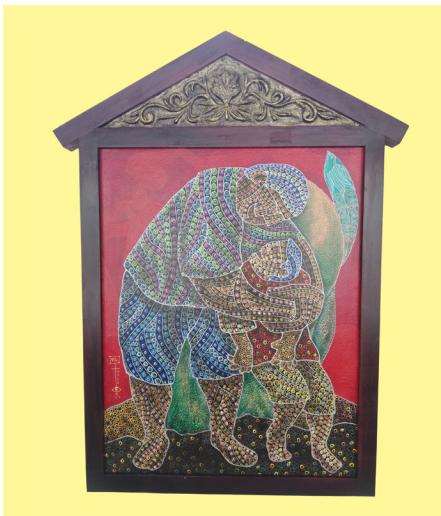

The piece is also a subtle nod to the boom of home gardening brought about by the stay at home quarantine policies: in the middle of nothingness, beauty can still be found once planted. The faced pots are not only works of art, they will also be vessels of beauty, hope and growth.

Finding a new beginning and planting the seeds of hope take time, and "Kinaraan" tells us to not be afraid of setbacks, resets, or new beginnings, to not feel anxious if the process takes longer than usual. We are reminded that people of yesterday never knew what the next day could offer, and we are invited to open our minds to the possibilities waiting for us tomorrow.

"Stay At Home: The Little Big Things of the Now," another installation piece by the group, features a Payag filled with doodles by the group's young members, scribbled at home while their education was held in limbo by the pandemic. As we are all Kulit Kultura collates and curates creations in the craft of carving, both by seasoned sculptures and emerging new artists.

With sculptures exhibited for the world to see, Kulit Kultura both offers sculptors a platform to prod and stimulate Mindanawon imagination into dynamism, and an opportunity for Mindanawon audiences to experience the empowering art of sculpture.

Kulit Kultura is a space for collaboration between artists and community, an opportunity not only to improve sculptor's skills, but also a chance to carve a stronger, more inclusive sense of local identity for Mindanao. In the process, we create a template by which other locales can begin strengthening the integrity of their own identities.

The carver and community help write this island's soul together, introspecting into and celebrating what destiny we can chisel and mold with what we have.
